CCIB stands for "China Commodity Inspection Bureaus". It is a network of provincial, municipal and local inspection offices in China that test ceramic items to assure they are in compliance with the current FDA (US Food and Drug Administration) action levels for leachable lead and cadmium.

Chinese factories that are in compliance with the FDA requirements are included on a list of CIQ SA (State Administration of Entry/Exit Inspection and Quarantine of China) certified factories. All certified factories goods are allowed to enter the USA without additional testing for lead or cadmium.

All certified factories are issued a unique CCIB Number and allowed to use the CCIB stickers on their products (number included on sticker). A CCIB sticker must be attached to every shipping carton or retail carton from these factories.
